THE NATIVES OF THE ARCHIPELAGO

CONLESPONDENCE OF THE DISPATOR. USHUWAIA, TIERRA DEL FUEGO, Dec. 1 -Should you ever find yourself so desperately hard up for a new place to visit as to dinase this farower "Rice Land" he sure to time your arrival in April, May or June, the autumn months of this locality, which, though cold as Greenland's ley mountains, are infinitely preferable to the slightly armer but much wetter summer time. In on there are few localities on the face of the earth which have less of summer time bad spirits disguised in human form; for than this. August and September are the they thought no more of shooting an Indian than this. August and September are the worst months of the year, sure to be attended by terrific gales and ceaseless storms of sleet and snow.

When Mageilan and his men sailed brough the Straits, some 370 years ago, they amed the country on their left Tierra del uego-"Land or Fire," on account of the nerable little fires that sprang up all along the coast at nightfall-for the Indians of those days, as now, kept themselves from freezing by huddling over ignited brush heaps. Had they called the country Tierra del Agua-"Land of Water"-instead, the name would have been more appropriate, tor while fires are maintained with difficulty, rater is the bane of the islands, falling continually in rain or snow. Even in midsummer people have been lost in the snow and frozen to death a few hundred feet above the sea level.

Divided Between Chile and Argentine. Sailing down toward Cape Horn in a outhwesterly course, it is difficult to beeve that the high, rugged, wintry coast is not an unbroken continent, instead of a vast chain of close-lying islands. The one large sland which the Spano-Portugese voyagers ubbed "Land of Fire," is now known as ing Charles South Land, or Eastern Tierra el Fuego; and the boundary line between entine possessions and those of the ilians runs straight down through the thus dividing it half and half beween those rival powers. The mighty the on the globe-really terminate at Land-an island lying considerably her to the southeast than even Cape

Thus, as you see, the Strait forms angle near the middle, Cape Froward e projecting point, the most southbit of land on the continent.

No Snow Where Most Expected.

Most of the islands rise straight up out of mater, from 1,000 to 5,000 feet toward wering sky without any intervening done by skillful and scientific proportion-ing of the parts. We have heard it said that if a certain apparatus gives the covered with eternal snow-for in southland, as in countries at an issuace north of the equator, the perpetual winter begins not far he sea. It is hard to believe the can be got on many cars by the same design.

Perhaps so; but it does not follow. And there could not be a much worse device than one which will go on quickly at the head of a train and slowly at its rear, for ents of travelers that beyond those ling hills there are rich valleys and ns, lakes, rivers and beautiful "every prospect such action would make greater shocks that and only man is vile in the interior "harles' domnin." Strange to say, but one of the possible defects to be looked for in a brake that has been tried in service or from the equator one voyages western side of the archipelago only on short trains. In short, we cannot only on strongly the importance, both to the less snow he sees; and finally, where the weather ought to be coldest it disaphe weather ought to be coldest it disapmakers, and to buyers, of knowing posi-tively, from thorough trials in service, on Attarctic beeches. many mariners who would otherwise have perished on these stormy coasts, and it has come to be a matter of course that whenever a disabled ship must be abandoned in the neighborhood of Hoorne Island, as numbers are every year, the great effort of the sur-vivors is to find their way through the labyrinth sounds and inlets to Ushuwaia.

The Superstitions of the Natives.

The archipelage is peopled by three distinct tribes of Indians, who speak three entirely different languages. Before the com-ing of missionaries to these islands the na-tives had no religion at all, nor any idea of a Supreme Being—only a dark and gloomy faith in evil spirits which came to do them barm and must be placated and appeared. Hence, the wind that nearly froze their naked bodies was believed to be an evil spirit; smallpox, which sometimes makes irightful havoc upon the islands, was the work of another, and white-skinned strangers, so different from themselves, were sur sed to be malicious powers in tangible forms, which must be exterminated at once.
All the missionaries agreed on one point, that these Indians never were cannibals, and that they had considerable excuse for the cruelties they used to perpetrate upon all foreigners who fell into their hands. The conduct of many reckless sailors has been uch as to carry out the idea that they were

Mid-Winter Excursion to Washington, Via B. & C. R. R.

On Thursday, January 14, the B. & O. R. R. will begin the annual series of midwinter excursions to Washington from Pittsburg. For this, as for similar excursions during preceding winters, the B. & O. will offer an exceedingly low rate, an unexcelled train service and every accommodation necessary for the comfort and convenience of passengers—all of which should render the trip a very desirable one. With each succeeding season these excursions to the national capital are growing in popular favor.

Washington is full of attractions. It always is. Congress is in session. The public buildings, the White House, the museums and the art galleries are always open to visitors free of charge. Then, too, there are to be seen the elegant private residences, the broad avenues, the spacious parks and the numberless monuments.
